

Anthropology 1

Human Evolution

About this course

This introductory survey course will outline the major themes and topics of the field of biological anthropology, including evolutionary theory, primate behavior and evolution, paleoanthropology, and modern human variation. Using these topics we will explore what it means to be human, how we evolved, and the evidence and implications of evolution in our daily lives. The approach to understanding these ideas is primarily scientific and biological, using information collected from bones, fossils, primate studies, and the examination of modern human variation.

Textbook

The following textbook is required as part of this course: Boyd R, Silk JB, & Langergraber K. 2024. How Humans Evolved (10th Edition). WW Norton & Co. ISBN: 978-1324061748. Digital access to InQuizitive is required. Students are recommended to use Bruin One for access.

Assignments and grading

Quizzes - 14% of your grade will be based on online quizzes via the InQuizitive system. Links and deadlines for each of these will be posted on canvas.

Exams - Students will complete two exams as part of this course, a midterm and a final. Each is worth 33% of your overall grade. The final exam will be during finals week. Exams are in-person, and will be a mix of multiple choice, short answer, and fill in the blank questions. No make-up exams will be given.

Discussion section - Your discussion section will constitute 20% of your overall grade. Discussion section grade will be based on attendance, participation, and on homework submissions. Students may miss one discussion section, no questions asked, with no grade penalty. See the canvas site for additional details on discussion section grading and policy.

Course Policies and Expectations

Bruin One at UCLA

This course is part of the UCLA Store's Bruin Digital programs, Bruin One Access or Inclusive Access. Your required course materials are being automatically provided to you by the first day of class or upon enrollment. The materials are being provided at a reduced and competitive price. You will receive e-mail from the UCLA Store with program details and cost sent directly to your email address on file with the Registrar. It is your responsibility to read all communication coming from the bookstore. Check your spam folder if not received. Everyone enrolled in this course is automatically a participant to start and will have access to the materials through 2nd week of class. Those remaining in the program after 2nd week will be billed for the materials directly to their BruinBill account and will have continued access to the materials. If you do not wish to participate in Bruin One Access or Inclusive Access, you must opt-out by the Friday of 2nd week deadline or you will be billed. Those who opt-out will lose access to the digital materials, will be required to return any print materials provided by the program and will be responsible for obtaining the materials on their own. Do not pay for your materials through the publisher website unless you are opting out of the Bruin Digital programs. Bruin One Access or Inclusive Access course materials will be billed to your BruinBill account. Questions regarding the applicable program can be directed to bruinoneaccess@asucla.ucla.edu.

Lecture and Attendance

Students are expected to be present for lecture, although given class size, attendance will not be taken. However, attendance is highly encouraged. Lectures will not be available online. Students will be provided PDF versions of lecture slides prior to class, found on the canvas website. Students who must miss a lecture should seek out a classmate to fill in missing notes. On exam days, attendance is mandatory, and make up exams will not be given unless prior arrangements have been made with the instructor.

Use of technology and mobile devices

Students may bring computers and mobile devices to class. However, disruption due to audible use of mobile devices is a violation of the student conduct code, and may result in sanctions including suspension or dismissal. Students may only use mobile devices or computers for course activity only. Flagrant violation of this rule may result in further technology restrictions. Audio or video recording in the classroom is not allowed.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism constitutes a violation of the UCLA student code of conduct. All assignments are expected to be original work. UCLA defines plagiarism as: “includes, but is not limited to, the use of another person’s work (including words, ideas, designs, or data) without giving appropriate attribution or citation. This includes, but is not limited to, representing, with or without the intent to deceive, part or all of an entire work obtained by purchase or otherwise, as the student’s original work; the omission of or failure to acknowledge the true source of the work; or representing an altered but identifiable work of another person or the student’s own previous work as if it were the student’s original or new work.” All instances of plagiarism will be reported to the university administration following standard procedures. Instructors for this course may make use of plagiarism detection services at their discretion.

You may not use ChatGPT or any other artificial-intelligence chatbot/LLM to complete homework assignments. If you do, this will be considered plagiarism. During discussion section, you may be asked to explain your homework responses aloud. If you are unable to explain your response, then your homework will be marked as incomplete.

Additional UCLA Policies and Expectations, which apply to this and all courses at UCLA, can be found here.
